

Design Concepts

#6.

The two forms reunite in a new expression. After all that hard work each is now listening to the other and each able to be themselves. A new grail like space is created offering the gesture of receiving from above.

This space was chosen as it is a central seating area. The sculpture supports the act of communication, resolution and connectedness. The space created in this piece allows for something to be received and then taken elsewhere, moved on so to speak. Most people sitting in and using this area will come together for lunch or a break or to sit and chat before moving on as well.
